

FACTORY LABOR FOR WOMEN.

Will They Regret It In the Days That Are to Come?

MEN MUST MEET CONDITIONS.

Being Usually More Desirable They Will Not In Turn Displace the Women?
—An Open Question That Is Being Much Discussed.

No city in the country is interested in a greater degree, proportionately, in the female factory labor problem, than Canton. Difficulty to find desirable domestics is experienced by every family that can afford to keep a "girl." The industries of Canton, many of them, produce such goods as can be made with the assistance of women. They are cheaper and so long as they do their work well and work for less money than men can afford to work for, they will hold their positions. A writer in the Chicago Chronicle discusses the subject in a manner that is pertinent and good reading. He says:

Reports from employment bureaus throughout the country indicate a curious industrial condition.

There is a famine of women employes, especially for domestic service. There is a surplus of men for every kind of employment.

The inevitable result of this industrial condition will be that hundreds of thousands of women will be at no far off day without homes, without income. For the law of nature is that of selection; the stronger will push the weaker aside that the fittest may survive. "Fittest" in evolution means only the most adaptable to environment.

The race of women from home to factory and store labor has been one of the startling phenomena of the century. Without apparent reluctance, indifferent to new dangers to health, mind and morals, the security of home was lightly rejected by women of every age, and hundreds of thousands who, according to tradition and prejudice, should have shared their mothers' cheery toil in the household until they became wives in turn preferred a course of deeper drudgery for unreal independence and precarious freedom.

While the factories and stores were dismissing men to take in women at lower wage domestic service was replenished by immigration. With re-establishment of peace in Europe and improved conditions in the British islands domestic places appeal in vain to employment bureaus.

Advertisements and labor agencies corroborate the statement that for three homes applying for domestics there is but one woman seeking that class of employment.

The country is thronged with idle men going from town to town in vain search of work. They have held out long for the pay they used to get. Necessity will gradually compel them to take what pay they can get and thus the places taken from men by women will revert to men, for, all other things being equal, it is conclusively established that men are more adaptable, negatively and positively, to work than women.

Men do not need to sit part of a working day. For when seats have to be provided. Men are said to be more patient as salesmen, more enduring under physical strain, readier in emergency, more versatile and resourceful. Men, native and foreign born, have no stubborn dislike to domestic work. A man deems degrading no kind of work that is honest and profitable.

The fact cannot be blinked that American families must do more of their own housekeeping.

Happily, the new mode of keeping a home facilitates this. Many of the inconveniences of earlier homes have disappeared. Mechanical devices mitigate all the labor of domestic service, while domestic engineering and more rational systems of management combine to reduce home toil to a minimum.

The true friend of her sex among leaders of women will be she who shall inaugurate a fashion of home keeping for the adoption of intelligent and refined women. The educated women of the day ought in common sense to inaugurate such a fashion among themselves.

All their clubs and federations will not repair the evils of dispersed families nor restore the honor and happiness of desolate hearths.

SURVEYS HAVE BEEN MADE.

More Talk About That Electric Line to Run From Salem to East Liverpool.

Salem Herald: For some days City Engineer Morris French has been employed in surveying a route for an electric railway line from this city through Lisbon to Wellsville and East Liverpool. The work has now been completed. Mr. French has been working for H. G. Foltz, a Cleveland engineer, who has temporary headquarters at Lisbon. Little is known about the line other than that Cleveland parties are booming the project. Foltz maintains an attitude of strict silence, although he admits it is the intention to connect his line with that of the A. S. & Co.'s proposed line between Salem and Alliance.

The route followed from Lisbon to this city is 12 miles in length. It follows the creek from Lisbon to Teegarden, then to Franklin Square and thence to Salem up the creek past the old Army dam. The grade is a very good one for the purpose, being only 15 feet to the mile.

The company has a right of way over the route and intends to haul coal from the Teegarden mines, as well as passengers to and from all points, if the road is ever constructed. It is rumored that the line is a part of the proposition to link Salem and Youngstown with an electric railway. There's lots of electricity in the air in this locality.

Kid-ne-oids contain the very best ingredients that are good for ailments arising from the kidneys. The vast number of people in this city who have testified to the merits of Kid-ne-oids is sufficient proof that none of our claims are false.

Mrs. J. G. Inman, 803 Lafayette street, Canton, O., says: "I have been afflicted with kidney trouble for several years, also with severe backache and nervousness. I tried several kinds of kidney remedies, but nothing seemed to relieve me until I commenced to take Morrow's Kid-ne-oids. They relieved my pains very quickly and quieted my nerves. STRIKINGLY NOVEL NAMES SELECTED.

A Custom Holding Good Though Originated Centuries Ago.

STORY LOCALLY FLAVORED.

Peculiar Incidents Which Have Occurred In the Lives of Young Children Leading to Their Future Titles.

Animosity sometimes prevails to an alarming extent between parents when they are called upon to choose names for their young children. They recognize that the child requires a baptismal name just as much as it will require clothes to wear or food to eat later on in life. The manner of originating these sometimes fantastic appendages to the family name oftentimes leads to humorous incidents. These cases are not extremely rare, but episodes of this nature run their course in daily life. The natural opportunity afforded by the hero of Manila bay to fond parents calling their children Dewey, in conformity with the ideas which prevailed in their minds when they learned of the great hero. There are hundreds of thousands of Deweys in this country as well as George Washingtons and Abraham Lincolns, and just lately a bit of lovely masculinity, born somewhere in the west, was named Hobson Dewey. In past ages, and it still is the custom in some portions of Europe at the present day, to surname children in accordance with the craft or general occupation of the father or the generation which may have preceded its birth. Such names as Longshanks and Grosswelds and Fenstermacher and Grosswald are all names with strikingly novel accentuation, but nevertheless they designated some design or locality or other incident in that family's life.

Locally applied there are instances where such animosities were settled in a peculiar manner, but to the satisfaction of the parents as well as to the gratification of the preacher concerned. It is not always that the two baptismal names are selected in the novel manner in which a local druggist, Dr. P. H. Barr, was named. There was a small assemblage of interesting citizens convened at a recent meeting when they took up the question of peculiar incidents respecting the naming of children.

"One of these incidents which I clearly remember," said one of the citizens, "was related to me by the late Rev. Peter Herbruck. It happened long ago, but will bear repeating. He told me once that he was called to a country town residence many years ago to baptize a child. The parents were prominent in the locality and when the Rev. Herbruck arrived there he was prone to begin service at once in order to make his way home before the day was over. The baptismal bowl was upheld and the preacher asked the parents what name they had chosen for their child.

"There was a peculiar expression on their faces, and they did not immediately reply. The preacher waited till he thought he was being delayed too long, and then suggested a name. The parents could not agree upon a name quickly when the preacher suggested his own name, that of Peter Herbruck Barr. The parents acquiesced in the name and thus it was that Dr. Barr, well known and prominent in this city, sings the initial 'P. H.' to his name."

Another instance was related where a christian family named their three children after the three godly graces, Faith, Hope and Charity. Still another citizen said he heard of parents who named their children Worlds Fair, because the child was born during the period of this country's exposition. Other stories of a like nature were mentioned.

THRILLING SPECTACLE.

Canton Man Witnessed an Accident at Akron That Was a Hair-Raiser.

At Akron on Wednesday evening of this week a narrow escape from death to many pleasure seekers was fortunately averted. On that evening, as told by an eye witness, residing in Canton, the opening dance for the season at Silver Lake was held and while a large open car loaded to its full capacity was ascending a steep hill just east of the city the power for an instant was shut off and before the motorman set the brakes the car loaded with its human freight started back down the hill at a rapid pace just as an Akron, Bedford & Cleveland car, headed for Cleveland, had started to ascend the hill. The motorman of the A. B. & C. car, however, took in the situation at a glance, reversed the current and his car, containing many passengers shot back in the direction of the city but not a moment too soon, since the Silver Lake car gained rapidly on it but fortunately was stopped before a collision occurred. Many passengers jumped from the wild car to be thrown to the ground and rolled over and over in the dusty road. Presently all were aboard again and the trip was safely made to the lake and it was a miracle that none were not killed or badly injured.

EMPLOYEES WARNED.

Officials of the Fort Wayne Come to Alliance And Give Employees Severe Lecture.

Salem Daily News: A number of the officials of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago division of the Pennsylvania lines came to Alliance Thursday afternoon and summoned a large number of the local employes of the road to the office of Detective Stacy, where a severe temperance lecture was administered to each. The employes were informed that the officials were aware of the manner in which the employes frequented the saloons and were warned that in the future such conduct would under no circumstances be tolerated. The lecture concluded with the warning that the employes could either quit the habit or quit the service of the company. Many of the employes are in indignation at the severe reprimand which was administered, and it is probable that a number of them will quit.

DEBUTANTES AND FROGS.

A Story That is Going the Rounds of the Tea Tables Is Interesting.

There has been a good story going the rounds of the May tea tables which is considered quite a joke on a certain lively bachelor girl who undertook to give a lecture the other day to her giddy debutante sister and a couple of her friends at luncheon, who were criticizing the men of their set in a very patronizing way, just as if they had but to snap their pretty fingers and all the men would drop at their feet.

"My young innocents," said the bachelor girl, "have you ever heard the remark which a clever man of the world made at dinner in which he compared all society girls to frogs in a pond? The debutantes," he said, "sat on the edge of the pond and piped in shrill little voices, 'No man good enough! No man good enough!' The next lot the girls who had been out several seasons, perched on logs farther out in the water and croaked in deeper tones, 'Oh, for a man! Oh, for a man!' while the old girls, like old bullfrogs, joined in the dismal chorus, 'Any man good enough! Any man good enough!'"

This allegory was received with great applause, but when the fun had subsided, an innocent young voice was heard to remark: "And where do you come in, Miss X—?" This question rather startled the girl who had told the story, for she did not think there was any possibility of the tables being turned on her in such a manner, but she managed to collect her wits in time to reply, amid the ripples of laughter, "Well, I certainly can't put myself in the third lot, 'Any man good enough!' So I think I must belong to the fourth class, in other words, those new women whose croak should be 'We want no man! We want no man!'"

DON'T GO IT BLIND.

There's No Need to in Canton—The Way is Almost Hedged with Guide Posts.

Have you ever read a newspaper article, a glowing account of some incident told in elusive words to lead you on, and found it ended up with a propitiously managing advertisement? Made you mad, didn't it? And were you convinced of the merit of the article? We think not, because it told the experiences of some stranger in a far-away town, to take his word for it was like "going it blind." It's very different when a statement is prescribed from a citizen; from people we know, and that's the case here.

Mrs. Henry Falke, who resides with her family at No. 112 Jackson street, says: "Lightning struck our house some years ago while I was standing near the kitchen stove. I was terribly shocked in the small of my back and side. It laid me up for some time and on getting around I noticed that my kidneys were affected to such an extent that ever since it caused my back to ache and it extended around to the side. I could not sit long in one position without feeling it when I attempted to rise. I tried out easily and I arose in the morning feeling unrefreshed and somewhat depressed particularly upon a change of weather. I took numerous remedies for the complaint but none of them cured me. Becoming impressed with reading notices in the papers about Doan's Kidney Pills I concluded to try a box and got one at Durbin, Wright & Co.'s drug store. They benefited me so much in a short time that I can recommend them to any lady suffering with the disease that makes so many women miserable."

WINE OF CARDUI

THE LINK THAT BINDS.

JACKSON, TENN., Nov. 28.
I was subject to miscarriage for three years, and suffered constantly with backache. I wrote to you for advice, and after using three bottles of Wine of Cardui, according to your directions, I am strong and well, and the mother of a fine girl baby.

Mrs. M. N. JOWNEE.

Wine of Cardui

There is no use talking—a baby in the house is the link that binds husband and wife together. Nothing is sadder than fruitless wedlock. The prattling and cooing of the little ones offset a thousand times the occasional worries and trials of life. When a wife is barren, there is a derangement somewhere in the genital organs, caused by one or more of those common disorders known as "female troubles." Wine of Cardui is the remedy. It puts the organs of generation in a strong and healthy condition, fitting the wife for the sacred duty of reproducing her kind. During the period of gestation the entire system of the expectant mother is built up to withstand the ordeal of labor, and when the little one makes its advent it is lusty and strong, well-fitted to grow to maturity in perfect health. The mother, too, passes through the trial with little pain and no dread. Wine of Cardui is truly a wonderful medicine for women.
